NAMPA POLICE DEPARTMENT PRESS RELEASE

Safety Training on College of Western Idaho Campus encourages partnerships

On Wednesday, Jan. 6, multiple first responders took part in active shooter response training at the College of Western Idaho (CWI) Nampa Campus Micron Center for Professional Technical Education.

Participants numbered over 150, which included volunteers, CWI staff, actors, police departments, fire departments and paramedics.

“This was an invaluable experience for our Treasure Valley Law Enforcement partners to be able to participate in a training of such caliber.” Chief Joe Huff noted.

The scenario was designed to elicit a multi-jurisdictional response to include all first responders who would normally be involved in an active shooter incident. The responders included officers who were there to deal with the suspected shooters, CWI security who assisted officers with layouts of the building, fire and emergency medical service personnel who set up triage areas and treated the wounded.

“We really want to thank the CWI staff and all our first responder partners for taking part in these efforts to keep our community prepared for what I pray we will never have to experience.” Huff said.

Participants included Nampa Police, Ada County Sherriff’s Department, Boise City Police, Canyon County Sherriff’s Department, Meridian Police, Nampa Fire, Ada County Paramedics and Canyon County Paramedics. Many volunteers as well as CWI staff and students were also on scene to take part in the experience.

The group is expecting to meet within a week to discuss details of the event to highlight training points.
